Re: Operation Sovereign Border — a federally held corridor on both international land borders, and the integrity architecture to keep it honest

Mr. President,

In 1907 and again in 1908, Theodore Roosevelt reserved a sixty-foot strip of federal land along the Mexican boundary and then along the Canadian boundary, on the reasoning that our laws are better enforced when the federal government has complete control over the land abutting an international boundary line. The southern half of that idea was eventually put to work. The northern half never was, and sixty feet was never enough on either border.

I am asking you to finish it.

The proposal enclosed asks for a continuous federally held corridor along both borders — six hundred sixty feet in federal ownership, extended to a half mile through paid security easements that leave American ranchers and farmers on their own land with their own deeds, and operating nodes roughly every fifty miles so that officers on the line can be relieved, reinforced, and protected. On both borders, north and south, because a boundary twice as long with a fraction of the infrastructure is a gap we should close before it is exploited rather than after.

But the land is only half of it, and the other half is the reason I am writing to you personally.

Our own government's record shows that people on the line can be bought. It shows something harder, too: people on the line can be taken. An organization that can find an officer's child does not need to offer a bribe. And under the way this is built today, an officer who is being threatened has nowhere safe to say so — reporting it means reporting up a chain that may already be compromised, with nothing protecting the family that is being used against them. So they stay quiet, and we lose the lane, and we treat a hostage as a criminal.

Some of them are in trouble right now. They need a door, and we can build it in ninety days without acquiring a single acre.

The enclosed brief sets out twelve working layers — sovereign hardware attestation, sovereign networks, sovereign AI governance, sovereign evidence and custody, personnel integrity with a protected duress channel, and protection for the children and families of the people who hold that line. These are not slides. They are built, deployed, and running, by one American small business, with every limit and unfinished edge published rather than hidden. That last part is the whole point: a border you can prove is worth more than a border you can only claim.

I would be honored to brief your staff. I am asking for four things: the proclamation, the Act, the duress channel inside ninety days, and two fifty-mile proof sectors — one north, one south — built to full specification, measured in public, failures included.

Respectfully,

Krissy Hall
